ACE SOFTWARE INTRODUCES MOBILE TOOL FOR ITS ADM2000 STUDENT INFORMATION SYSTEM SOFTWARE

Enables administrators to access student information at any time from anywhere

GROVE CITY OH, February 15, 2005: ACE Software has introduced a mobile tool for its ADM2000 Student Information System software that enables principals and other administrators to instantly access critical data about students at any time from anywhere. Principals can use ADM2000 Principalm™ with a Palm OS-based PDA to view emergency contact, scheduling, attendance and other information, whether in the hallway or on a field trip.

“ADM2000 Principalm puts student-related data at the principal’s fingertips—no matter where they are—rather than requiring them to be at their desks,” explained Michael Uhrin, ACE Software founder and president. “ADM2000 Principalm is our response to the demand for enhanced student accountability and school security.”

ADM2000 Principalm provides secure, mobile access to such vital information as emergency phone number, schedule (sorted by period or teacher), homeroom teacher and room, and counselor name. It also gives attendance details, locker number and combination and other information instantly, along with the student’s photo.

ADM2000 Principalm is included in ACE’s ADM2000 Student Information System at no extra charge. Principalm connection software (that provides the link to ADM2000) and PDAs are extra.
